

Joseph Is Kind To His Brothers

By Jill Kemp

Illustrated by Richard Gunther

Joseph's brothers were not kind to him.
They sold him to King Pharaoh in Egypt.
Joseph was King Pharaoh's best helper.
He knew that God was with him where ever he was.

One day Joseph was put in jail for something he did not do. In jail he was good and kind. Everyone knew that Joseph loved God and did what was good and right.

One night King Pharaoh had a dream.
No one could help him understand it.
He sent for Joseph. Joseph asked God to help him understand the dream.

God told Joseph, "Tell King Pharaoh to get lots and lots of corn because soon people in other countries won't have enough to feed their families."

Soon Joseph's brothers had no corn left to eat.
They were hungry, so their dad sent them to buy corn from King Pharaoh.
Would Joseph be kind to his brothers?

Yes! Joseph gave corn to his brothers and gave some to them to take home to his dad.
He forgave his brothers for being unkind.

Joseph loved God
and he looked after his family.
God wants us to be kind to everyone,
even if they are not kind to us first.
