

As we sat down to our Christmas dinner we gave thanks for our food, family and friends. It felt good to know that we had shared what we have to help other families.

Random Acts Of Kindness

By Jill Kemp
Illustrated by Richard Gunther

Imagine the difference it would make if everyone helped other families in their community. Doing kindness to others actually blesses yourself!

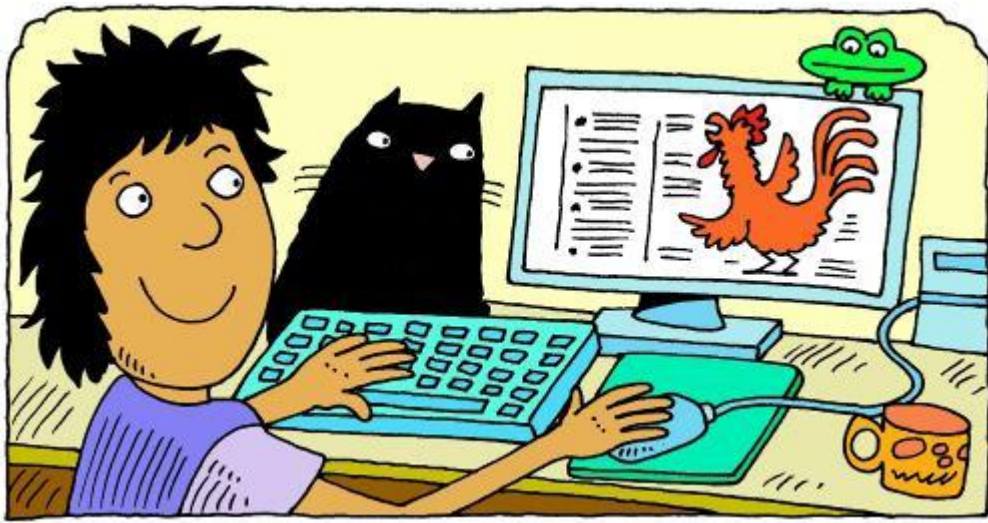

As we sat down to our Christmas dinner we gave thanks for our food, family and friends. It felt good to know that we had shared what we have to help other families.

Random Acts Of Kindness

By Jill Kemp
Illustrated by Richard Gunther

Imagine the difference it would make if everyone helped other families in their community. Doing kindness to others actually blesses yourself!

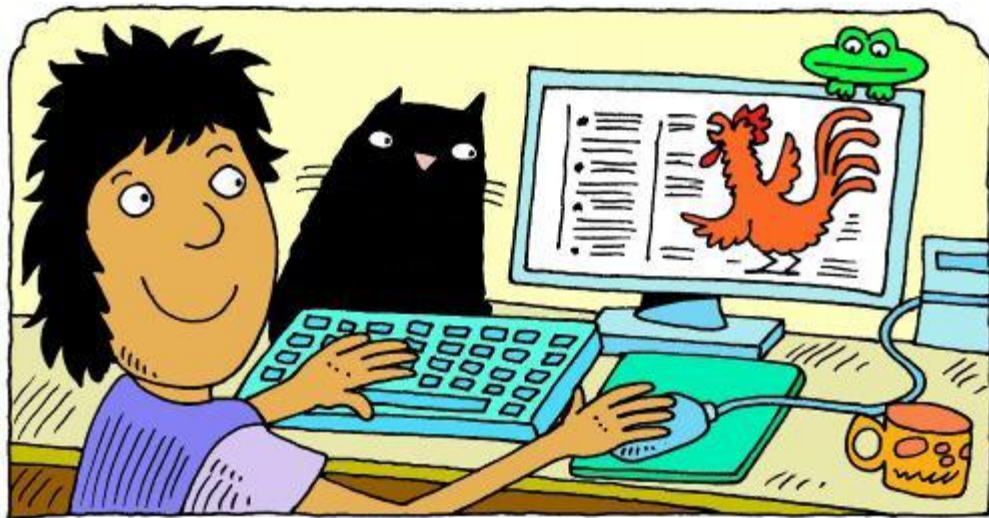

Our sister used her pocket money to buy two hens and a rooster for a poor family in another country. Selling chickens and eggs would give them money to buy food.

2

On Christmas Eve we dropped our gifts on the family's front door step. "We have had a visit from angels," said the mother, with tears in her eyes.

7

Our sister used her pocket money to buy two hens and a rooster for a poor family in another country. Selling chickens and eggs would give them money to buy food.

2

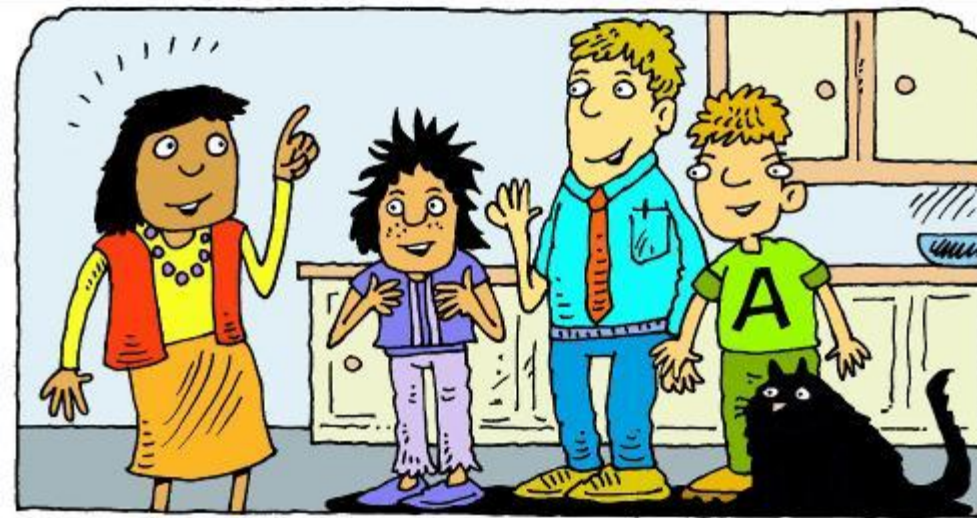

On Christmas Eve we dropped our gifts on the family's front door step. "We have had a visit from angels," said the mother, with tears in her eyes.

7

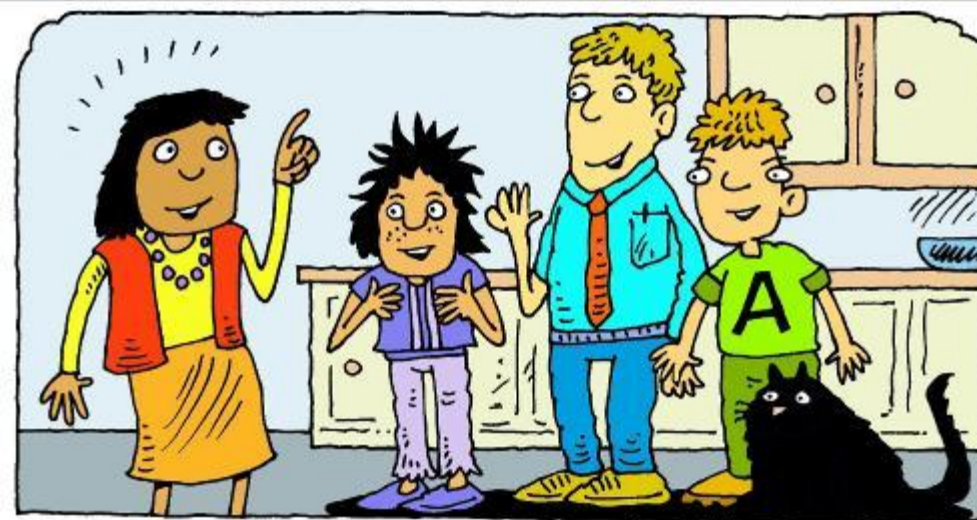

Our father dug new potatoes and picked fresh vegetables and strawberries from his garden. "Give from what is in your hand," he said. He was thankful he still had a good job.

Then our family decided we would like to do random acts of kindness and help some families who don't have much money, to have a special Christmas.

Our father dug new potatoes and picked fresh vegetables and strawberries from his garden. "Give from what is in your hand," he said. He was thankful he still had a good job.

Then our family decided we would like to do random acts of kindness and help some families who don't have much money, to have a special Christmas.

"I know a man who has just lost his job.
The family may be struggling to buy enough food to eat, let alone have money to buy presents for their children," our father said.

4

Our mother began to buy a few extra
items with her shopping each week.
We made some Christmas cookies
and homemade lemonade.

5

"I know a man who has just lost his job.
The family may be struggling to buy
enough food to eat, let alone have money to buy presents for their children," our father said.

4

Our mother began to buy a few extra
items with her shopping each week.
We made some Christmas cookies
and homemade lemonade.

5